Dr. Mark Goldenberg was named EMT (emergency medical technician) of the Year at the annual dinner of Weston Emergency Services volunteers.

Dr. Goldenberg has been a volunteer with Weston EMS for eight years. He acts as safety coordinator and makes sure the EMTs are safe and wear appropriate equipment when they go on service calls.

“I’m devoted to keeping the squad safe,” Dr. Goldenberg said.

Dr. Goldenberg decided to volunteer with Weston EMS after a family member suffered an injury and relied on EMS to provide help and assistance. “I decided then to volunteer with Weston EMS and give something back to the community,” he said.

As a board-certified chiropractic neurologist, Dr. Goldenberg runs the Brain Balance Achievement Center in Norwalk, which helps children with learning disabilities and offers programs for children with autism, ADD, ADHD, dyslexia, Tourette syndrome, Asperger’s, and spectrum disorders.

He said working with Weston EMS to help others get the medical assistance they need and transport them to the hospital is very rewarding.

“When there is a sick child or an elderly person who needs help, our goal is to get them safely to the hospital,” he said.

Dr. Goldenberg said he was honored to be named EMT of the Year.

“The motto for Weston EMS is ‘neighbors helping neighbors.’ It’s an excellent organization and the people involved are all top notch who care about the community. I’m happy to be part of it,” he said.
